

Fog Valley Crush is a love letter to a quirky little micro-region of farmers, food innovators, artists and dreamer – featuring a colorful assortment of larger-than-life friends, neighbors and a community's key farming players, past and present. Join British/American journalist Frances Rivetti on a delicious romp through her adoptive Gold Rush-era city of Petaluma and surrounding Pacific coastal countryside, 40 miles north of San Francisco, California. Part memoir, part reportage, Fog Valley Crush is a celebration and a sharing of an extraordinary place – the last secret corner of wine country. Vintage and modern recipes are peppered throughout Fog Valley Crush, offering a taste of Petaluma's pioneering roots paired with a community's present day preference harking back to a more wholesome way of life. Pull up a chair, pour yourself a glass of wine and settle in for a while. In a time when we all want to know where our food and drink comes from, Fog Valley Crush makes for a light and refreshing, yet compelling argument on a sustainable lifestyle.
