Harriet (Watson) Kellogg 225, Amherst, Mass., was an earnest devoted christian, uniting with the Congregational Church at the age of fifteen years, ever showing by her life and conversation that she was truly a disciple of the Lord. She was always in her place in church as long as her health permitted. During her nearly twelve years of blindness no one ever heard a murmuring or complaining word but that it was all right, wisely ordered by her Master. She had the gift of making and keeping friends, and they were many. She had perfect trust in her God and her Saviour in all the afflictions which she had been called to pass through, The last...
