

Do You want to give Your child a great start in this competitive world? From the moment they arrive you want the very best for your children, in every aspect of their lives. The pre-school years from 0-5 are a crucial time for your child – development happens faster at this stage than at any other, so it is natural to wonder (and worry) how to best prepare them for a lifetime of learning. More than anything else, we want our children to be happy and successful in whatever they choose to do – but how can we, as parents, make this happen?

The answer lies in creating a learning experience that is fun, from the very beginning. All children can be stimulated and engaged in working towards big learning goals without the pressure of formal lessons or hard work. At this formative stage, making learning an enjoyable and natural part of everyday life is the key to shaping a young person who is self-confident, interested, motivated and completely ready for the demands of more formal education. This book examines research into what works and doesn't work, identifying 7 strategies that will help any parent, whatever their circumstances, to help their child build a love of learning that will stand by them all through their school years and beyond. From the physical and emotional support that provides the essential framework for any child, through to early years learning techniques, the report gives you solid advice and ideas for your child that can be applied by any family, in real life. There are no expensive kits or tricky systems, just a firm belief that you are the key to unlocking your child's potential. At all times, the focus is on the child and their well-being. Sacrificing your child's happiness, family time together or lots of money may yield short term results, but this report aims to do so much more – it aims to show you how to take the love you have for your child and use it to create a childhood that is fun, memorable and equips them for life.
