

Too many people today think that the Ten Commandments were written only for some people thousands of years ago. But we never outgrow the Ten Commandments. Moses received these commandments from God as principles for living with God, others, and ourselves. In a way, the Ten Commandments summarize The Covenant of God with Gods people. Although the Ten Commandments are put in a negative form, they are positive messages on how to live a meaningful, moral life. We can never outgrow these teachings. In the Sermon on the Mount by Jesus, we catch a glimpse of how these ancient commandments are applied anew to each generation. He probed behind them to show the even deeper meaning. We must search these ancient, ever new commandments to see what their meaning is for us today. The Ten Commandments are not simply moral imperatives that place upon us a heavy burden, but are rules for living so that we can know real freedom and joy as we align ourselves with the God we seek to love and follow. In Psalm One, the psalmist speaks of his delight in the law of the Lord and how he meditates day and night on that law. Some like to argue that grace has done away with law. But when one studies carefully the gospels, you see that Jesus did not reject the Law. Jesus said: Think not that I have come to abolish the law and prophets: I have not come to abolish them but to fulfill them. For truly, I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, not an iota, not a dot, will pass from the law until all is accomplished (Matthew 5:17-18). Unless indicated otherwise the Scripture quotations are from the New Revised Standard Version (New York: Collins Publishers, 1989). I want to thank Carolyn Stice, my former secretary at St Matthews Baptist Church in Louisville, Kentucky, for her willingness to type this manuscript through several drafts. I also want to express my appreciation to Linda McNally, Administrative Assistant at Cool Spring Baptist Church, for her careful proofreading of the final draft of my manuscript. William Powell Tuck
