

Benign A pollo, this last labour aid ;M ake me thy vessel, with thy might imbue, And thy loved laurel give, my brow to shade. One summit of Parnassus hitherto Sufl Bced me ;now must I tread both beneath. While I the race in this last stage pursue. Enter my bosom, thy own spirit breathe, As when with Marsyas, in contention placed, 20 Thou from their covering didst his limbs unsheathe. OP ower Divine, should I be so much graced. That of yon blissful realm the memory On me impressed may now by me be traced, lshall be seen approach thy favourite tree, And with its leaves then crown myself, if thou And my high theme such merit give to me. So rarely gathered, Father, for the brow With triumph crowned, of Emperor or Bard, (O fhuman wills the fault and scandal now) 30 To the blithe Delphic deit ,regard For the Peneian leaf new joy should bring. When any mortal thirsts for that reward. From one small spark a mighty blaze may spring ;A nd after me some poets prayer may rise Which, better sung, may Cirrha sanswer bring. The laurel is called amato in allusion to the fable of Daphne (P urgatorio, xxii. 113, note), beloved by A pollo, and who, flying from him, invoked the aid of the gods, and was changed into a laurel. 2S ocalled from the river Peneus in Thessaly, on the banks of which laurels grew in abundance ;whence Dapline was fabled to be a daughter of this river. 3A city in Phocis, at the foot of Mount Parnassus. It was the port of Delphi, and had a temple of A pollo.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgotten Books Classic Reprint Series utilizes the latest technology to regenerate facsimiles of historically important writings.
