

Training to be a superhero is so dangerous that I'm more likely to graduate to a coffin than a cape! But I don't care, because being a superhero is all I've wanted since the day the alien saucers came out of space and started attacking the Earth. They tore up mountains and cities with ease, killing millions of innocent people. The only thing that stood between Earth and Armageddon was small teams of superheroes who rose up to save the day. But we are losing the war for Earth, and even the superheroes are dying in their dozens. And I might be next.
